FOREWORD

Sometime during ones life he wonders about his ancestors; who they were, what they were like, where they came from, and what motivated their existence. It was but natural, then, that several members of the Weaver family had collected data about relatives with the view to eventually getting out a genealogy. Two of these collectors were J. Clark Weaver, who had been compiling data since 1926, and coincidentally Hettie Jane Cummins Barnes who had been collecting information about the Joel Weaver family and descendants.

In about 1948, Nellie Weaver Gould, Hettie Jane Barnes, and Luther Cummins talked each other into a decision to call the Weavers together for the first family reunion of 1950. The gathering place was Elgin, Oregon.

From this meeting an association was formed. Hettie Barnes was elected permanent Historian, Luther Cummins President, Weldon Weaver Honorary President, and Nellie Gould Secretary. At the 1952 meeting, with Joel Byrnes as president, it was decided to publish as a Weaver Family Memorial, a book of the statistics and history of the Joel and Isaac Weaver families. Nellie Gould, as Secretary, was assigned the task of gathering all the necessary information. J. Clark Weaver was elected to edit it.

Forms were printed and sent out. For four years, up to the time of printing, material continued to come in from the four corners of the United States. At the latest estimate there were nearly one thousand descendants of Joel and Phebe Weaver and Isaac and Mary Weaver who crossed the plains by covered wagons with ox teams in 1864.

With the publication of this material the committee wishes to thank all those who sent in information, history, data about various members of the Weaver family, bought additional copies and gave encouragement. (The committee regrets that costs prohibited the use of all the material and photos sent to it.) We wish to thank Nellie Gould particularly for the thousands of miles she and her husband Fred traveled free as they looked for and found various members of the Weaver family whose addresses were not known. Thanks are expressed to Merrill Gould for his contribution of one copy of the Memorial to be placed in the Library of Congress, Washington, D. C., and to all those who have ordered a copy to be placed in their local libraries, city, county, and State.

The committee wishes to thank in particular all those who advanced money to finish the Memorial: Lela Cummins Cox, Hettie Cummins Barnes, Ora Huffman Miller, Joel W. Byrnes, Luther Cummins, Orville W. Weaver, Henry A. Weaver, Madison L. Weaver, Lloyd C. Spikes, Lawrence E. Linklater, Audra and Tom Williams, Walter D. Huffman, Gertrude Wright Hoffnauer, Audley Hanson, Joe Weaver, John I. Weaver, Eunice and Carl Groth, Fred Gould, Curtis Weaver, Elmer Cummins, Kenneth Byrnes, Weldon Weaver, Elva Spikes, and the many, many others.

We wish to thank those who helped type the manuscript and mimeographed letters—all those who contributed time, energy and efficiency. We wish especially to thank Helen Linklater Pratt and Agnes Milne Shoemaker who each traveled great distances to type the manuscript.

With regard to the content and detail of this Memorial, the committee (although it tried) holds no brief for its accuracy and assumes no personal or group responsibility for errors. Mistakes of all kinds have crept in, and although the committee regrets these errors, and has tried to remove them, the fact remains there are still errors present. Therefore, the committee recommends that when you come upon an error, you correct it in your copy so that if in one hundred years another memorial is issued, the data contained in it will be more accurate than that found herein.

Hettie Barnes, Historian; Nellie Gould, Secretary; J. Clark Weaver, Editor

THE WEAVER FAMILY TREE

There are four family names that appear in the root system of the Weaver Family Tree. These names are Sturgil, Howard, Alexander, and Weaver. The following is what is known of the beginning of these families.

ROOT I

Joel Sturgil married Walters. Her given name is not known. It has been established however, that there were seven children: Jacob, Irwin, Solomon who married Mary Huffman Cummins, Mary Ann who married Joe Harris, Esther who married Hugh Warren, Catherine Ann who married Joshua Weaver.

ROOT II

Reason Howard married Elizabeth Ray. So far as is known there were but two children: Elijah, and Jemima who married Robert Alexander.

ROOT III

Isaac Alexander married Betsy Laruc. Apparently there was but one child Robert who married Jemima Howard.

ROOT IV

Weaver. His given name and whom he married is not known. It is known however, that at least four children were born: Gideon, Jury, Daniel, and Joshua who married Catherine Ann Sturgill, July 4, 1843.

HOW THE WEAVER TREE BEGAN

Robert Alexander married Jemima Howard. There were nine children: Phoebe Catherine (who married Joel Weaver) b. 2-2-1836, d. 9-6-1913 Indian Valley Oregon; Robert, Jr. b. 4-5-1845, d. 1910, m. Margaret Taylor; Isaac, Alfred m. Elizabeth Bunch; Samuel; John m. Elizabeth Pate, Sarah m. Joseph Ferguson; Mary Louise (who married Isaac Weaver) b. 3-2-1839, d. 11-1-1911 (see above); Lydia, m. The WEAVER FAMILY GENEOLOGY as recorded in the pages of this book is the outgrowth of the two main family trunks made up of the descendents of Joel Weaver and Isaac Franklin Weaver, the two sons of Joshua Weaver.

Joshua and Catherine Weaver

Joshua Weaver, father of Joel and Isaac, the first known ancestor, was born in North Carolina, May 23, 1811, and moved to Virginia. On July 4, 1833, he married Catherine Ann Sturgill. Their children were born in Virginia. Later, the family moved to Sullivan County, Missouri. After their sons, Joel and Isaac, were married, the Weaver and Sturgill families, along with the Huffmans, Cummins, Harrises, and the Alexanders joined an immigrant train at Independence, Missouri, and traveled the Oregan Trail with ox teams to Oregon and Washington Territory.

Joshua and Catherine Ann Weaver's two sons, Joel and Isaac, were farmers and they married sisters. Joel Weaver and Phebe Catherine Weaver were married August 26, 1855. in Sullivan County, Missouri, presumably near a town called Owasco. Their first children were twins, a boy and a girl, born twenty-four hours apart. Named Robert Joshua and Mary Catherine, they were known in the family as Bob and Cattie. Two years later another pair of twins, John Robinson and Sarah Sussanna, known as John and Susie, were born.

Every two years, Joel and Phebe's family increased. Caleb Larue, named for his great grandmother, Betsy Larue, was called Cale. The next child was Magara Elizabeth. She was followed by Jemima Jane, Called Mimi. Jemima was named for her maternal grandmother, Jemima Howard Alexander. Younger brothers and sisters continued arriving in this order: Thomas Franklin, or Tom; Joseph Hartsell, called Joe; Amelia Ann, called Melia, and Weldon Walker, called Weldon, the eleventh and last child born to Joel and Phebe Weaver.

Joshua Weaver's other son, Isaac, married Mary Alexander, July 4, 1856, in Missouri. They had fifteen children, all named for ancestors. Isaac, who at first was a farmer, became a preacher.

When plans were made for going west, Joshua Weaver had grandchildren big enough to help with the chores. Fifteen years had passed since the discovery of gold in California. Now other news had traveled eastward, news of good farm land in Washington Territory and Oregon. This far away country sounded inviting to the young farmers with growing families. In 1864, Joshua, Joel and Isaac and their families with wagons and oxen joined an immigrant train to make the trip west over the Oregon Trail. After six months of travel they reached the Walla Walla Valley in October or November and setled on the Touchet River near the present town of Prescott. Two years later they moved to Indian Valley, Oregon.

No written record was kept of the travels and happenings of the wagon-train. The tales that have been told relate that the trip was hot and dry. Grass became scarce as the ox teams slowly moved westward. Everyone grew tired long before reaching their destination. There were a few Indian scares although the wagon-train never had any specific trouble. They did come upon the remains of some trains that had been destroyed.

One story handed down relates how one evening trouble seemed close when a lone Indian rode into camp. The women had gathered greens along the trail near the Rockies, and when camp was made began cooking the greens over the fire. When the Indian rode into camp he went immediately to the fire, dipped into the kettle with his fingers and began eating the greens. Joel Weaver put a stop to this by rapping the Indian across the fingers with his fork. Perhaps the intruder knew his manners, or perhaps he didn't like the white man's food; he stopped helping himself and no trouble arose over the incident.

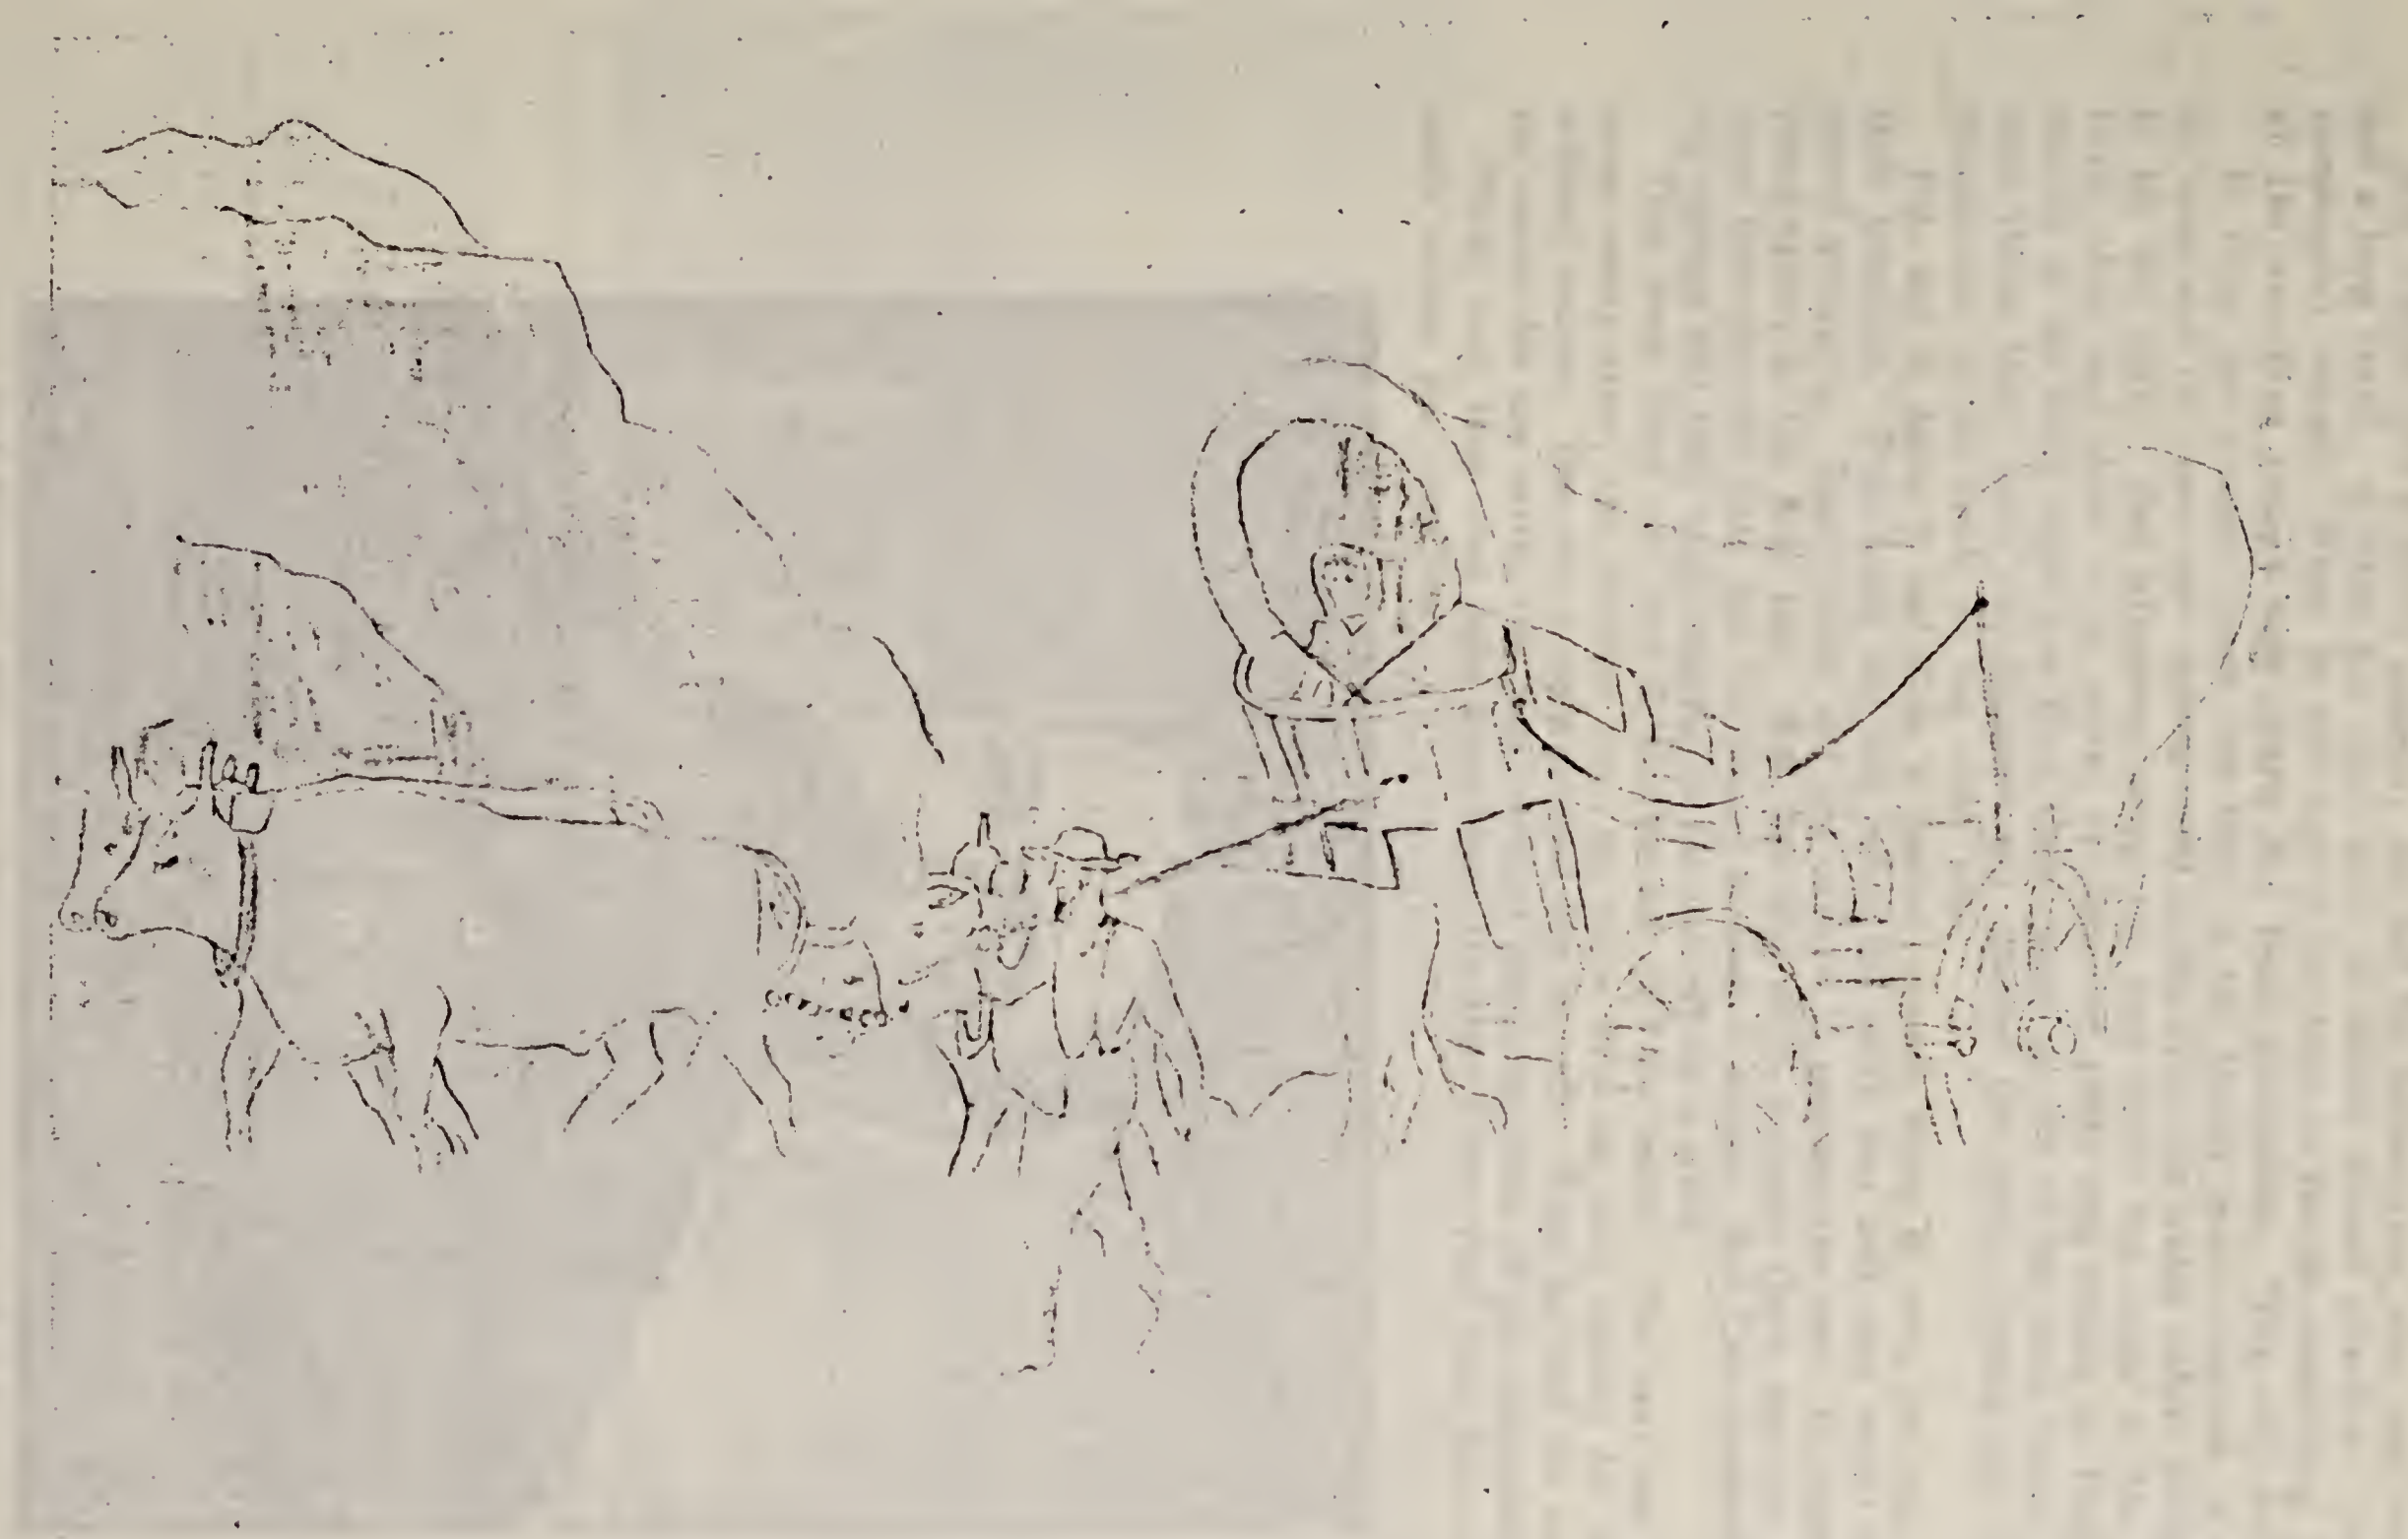
Buffalo were hunted for meat. However, dried beans were the main staple. In some places, because of the high altitude, cooking them was difficult. The beans were cooked all night and in great quantities to last for several days. They were cooked in the following way. A hole was dug in the ground and coals or hot rocks put in. Next the pot of beans was placed in the underground oven and dirt was put over that.

On much of the journey wood was so scarce that Buffalo chips were gathered and used as fuel. Water was scarce too. Not even babies could be bathed very often. Everyones skin cracked and the dust added to the misery and discomfort.

After the train came to a halt one night and the camp had settled down with everyone asleep, one of the men standing guard came rushing into camp. He was frightened almost speechless, and when he could talk he told how he had seen a ghost. No one in the train believed in ghosts, but they went back with him and he pointed out the white object. After carefully stalking the object, it was discovered the "ghost" was Mr. Walker's white mule.

The rivers had to be forded, the deep ones with the shallow. If the water was deep, logs were tied to the sides of the wagons so that they would float. In this way the wagon could be guided rather than pulled by the swimming cattle. If a family lost a wagon during one of these crossings, other families took them in. As the wagons grew scarcer and the country more rough and rugged, the men and the younger women walked.

Joel Weaver's first home was thirty-two miles north of Walla Walla, beside the Touchet River, near the present city of Prescott, Washington.



On the Way to Oregon. Pencil sketch by J. Clark Weaver based on painting by Peter Hurd.

Joel Weaver was a sturdy pioneer. He had big hollow eyes, gray and brown hair, and a long beard. A strict and stern man, he seldom showed affection. Always he commanded respect. When he told one of the boys to run do something, they ran all the way even though they nearly fell from exhaustion. "Pap said to!"

In their new pioneer home, the boys in the family were expected to see that the oxen and the cows were driven down to the river for water before being herded in for the night. One afternoon when the boys drove the cattle to the Touchet River, they kept them in the water by throwing rocks and yelling at them. They wanted to see them wade and stick their heads up out of the deep water. As the boys threw their rocks and laughed and shouted the cattle crossed the river and disappeared in the trees on the other side.

Bob, age 8, John, 6, and Cale, 4, looked at each other in awe, for this was not their intention. They knew too that when the truth was told they would receive a severe whipping. Their father did not believe in sparing the rod. Of course, self-preservation is the first law. But Bob and John declared there was no way out since four-year-old Cale was too young to keep a secret. But Cale insisted he was big enough and they could depend on his not saying a word.

They went home and said they could not find the cattle. The next day, and for three weeks after, Joel Weaver rode his horse over the hills looking for his cattle without success. One day a man stopped him to talk. When he told the man about his search for the cattle, the man inquired about the time of the disappearance.

"Well, Joel, that must have been about the time I saw your little boys drive the cattle across the river."

Joel Weaver. His wife, Phebe Catherine, never had her picture taken.

The cattle were soon found, and the boys long remembered the whipping they received for not telling the truth.

Joel Weaver was of the old school. He believed children should be seen and not heard. He believed, too, they were raised to work and help make the living regardless of education. The three "R's" were considered sufficient, which was all that was available at that time. All of his children did like to read and gathered considerable knowledge throughout their lives in this way. The girls may have had a little more schooling, but they too worked, helping with household duties, washing clothes for a family of thirteen or more, ironing, cooking and washing dishes, spinning, knitting sox, stockings, and working at other daily frontier life chores.

Recreation was horseback riding, play parties, and singing school. Joel Weaver's sons and daughters were popular and good "catches."

When Indian Valley, Oregon, was finally chosen instead of Prescott, Washington, Joshua and his two sons took out homestead rights and acquired adjoining land on Indian Creek. There they built a house and barn. When the barn was finished, it was used for a church camp meeting.

Phebe Weaver, Joel's wife, lived only ten years after they moved west. The last eight of these years were spent in Indian Valley. Phebe was a hard working woman who made her own lye from wood ashes, soap from cracklings, washed on a hand board, spun wool into yarn, and knitted sox and stockings for all eleven of her children. Her girls learned to knit as soon as they were old enough. Phebe would work all day and then sew by the light of the fire from the fireplace after the family was in bed. The dresses she made were neatly sewed and hemmed by hand and trimmed in ruffles.

Joel and Phebe's daughter, Mary Catherine, died at the age of seventeen and was buried in a field on the hillside. Her mother was buried beside her just two years later, September 6, 1875. Their graves may be found there today. Brush has overrun the graves and the tombstones are not as upright as they once were, but the inscriptions are vivid and clear:

Phebe Weaver
Died September 6, 1875—age 39 years, 7 months and 4 days
O let us think of all she said,
And all the kind advice she gave.
And let us do it, now she's dead
And sleeping in her lonely grave.

With the responsibility of farming and ten children to look after, Joel Weaver needed another helpmate. A preacher told him of a widow, Priscilla Jane Colwell with a family at Cove, Oregon, and offered to introduce him to her.

Priscilla Jane and several other members of the Moore family, Leet, Tom, Sarah, and Eunice, had traveled by wagon train to the West. On the trip, Priscilla Jane married a guide, Mr. Colwell. The couple made their home in Cove, Oregon. When their five children were still small, Priscilla Jane was widowed.

On May 20, 1877, Priscilla Jane and Joel Weaver were married. The family household then included, in addition to Joel and Phebe's ten living children, these five stepbrothers and sisters: Florence, Olive, Bell, Mae, and Marion Colwell.

The first male of the Weaver family, Joshua, the pioneer who traveled from his birthplace in North Carolina, to settle finally in Oregon, died November 9, 1886. John R. Weaver, his wife Florence and their two small children were visiting their grandparents, Joshua and Catherine Ann. Joshua got up and went to the kitchen to wash his face and hands. He came back to the living room and as he stood in front of a mirror combing his hair he began to stagger. John caught him and laid him on the bed. His last words were, "Take my boots off, Johnnie."

He was buried in the pasture along Shaw Creek. Catherine Ann died in December, 1890, and was buried beside Joshua.

Robert Joshua and Louisa Davis Weaver

FIRST CHILD OF JOEL AND PHEBE WEAVER

Robert Joshua Weaver, the first son (a twin), married Louisa D. Tucker, November 1879, in Union County, Oregon. They had nine children. Shortly after the first two, James T. and William Stonewall, were born near Elgin, Oregon, Robert and Louisa Weaver decided to return to Arkansas. In 1882, the family settled on a farm at Agnos, Arkansas. Their other children were born there. One son, Walter, died in infancy.

Robert Joshua Weaver, Bob, died October 17, 1896, while his children were still young. At the time of his death Martha, the youngest, was less than two years old, and Jim, the oldest, was sixteen.

Jim married Elizabeth Estes March 4, 1900, and lived on the home place. In January, 1906, Jim, Lizzie, Cale and Will went to Washington State where they worked in John Weaver's sawmill at Elgin, Oregon for several months. Jim and Elizabeth (Lizzie), moved back to Arkansas in October, 1906, after working for Woodson Cummins at Touchet, Washington, and in the wheat harvest. Jim built the first rock house in Ashflat, Arkansas, in 1921, and the first stucco house there in 1928. In addition to working as a builder, he taught singing schools in both Fulton and Sharp County, Arkansas. Jim is now in the trucking business at Mammoth Spring, Arkansas.

William Stonewall Weaver married Mary Owens in 1900. Their first child, Ollie Mae, was born in August, 1901. When their second daughter Annie Crystal was born, Mary died. The baby lived for nine months. In 1906, when Ollie was four years old, Will, as the family always called him, went to Washington State again. Ollie remained in Arkansas and lived with her Grandmother Weaver. In 1923, Ollie married Tom Goodson. They had five children but only reared two, Freda and Jackie. When Ollie died in September, 1945, Jackie and Freda went to Washington State to live with their Grandfather, William S. Weaver.

When Will went to Washington State in 1906, he took his two youngest brothers, Caleb and Jim, with him. Jim and Cale stayed a year and went back to Arkansas to make their homes.

Will stayed on in Washington, and married Vina Ester Poiriera, of Walla Walla, in 1917. Except for a year and six months that they lived in Nez Perce, Idaho, they have always lived in the Walla Walla Valley. Their oldest daughter, Faye, was born in Nes Perce, Idaho.

In 1920, Will and his family moved to a seven acre tract three miles south of Walla Walla, and built their own home. The rest of the family, Esther, Phoebe, John, Bertha, and Dorothy were born while they lived on this place. Later they moved to a larger farm near Touchet, Washington.

Any history of the Robert Joshua Weaver family would not be complete without a story often told by Will's children. Will and his brother, Grover (who also went to Washington) were batching. They grew tired of eating the plain foods that bachelors usually cook and decided to vary their menu by baking a cake. Will mixed the batter. They did not have a cake pan so they put the batter in a small baking powder can. All went well until the batter started to rise and the baking powder can proved too small to hold its content. As the dough poured over the top, Will grew a bit excited. But his brother Grover took in the situation, sat back and very calmly said, "Peel it Will! Peel it!"

Louisa Weaver went to Washington State from Arkansas for a visit in 1927. All that was left of the old home place was the small granary. Most of her visit she spent with her Aunt Susie Tucker. She died in Arkansas, June 19, 1933.

FOURTH CHILD OF JOEL AND PHEBE

The farm home of Joseph and Sarah Susanna Huffman, (Joe and Susie), was the scene of a large and happy family group. The eight children were all born in the frame house and all but two were reared there. Memories of their childhood days included the big rock in the pasture above the barn, Ouch the black dog, the windmill at the well, the magpie the boys caught and trained to speak, the Hindman school, little Jimmy the bay pony, Charlie the strawberry roan Cecil rode to school, the big lilac bush at the side of the house, the big bush of yellow roses, and the daily odor of milk being cooked for the cheese made by their mother in the kitchen.

The Huffmans as a family loved the home fires so well they stayed together as a unit until all the children were grown. Early in 1905 it was decided for the health of Susie, they should sell the farm and go to Arlington, California. There the three younger members of the family went to high school.

During World War I, the family was scattered, but at its termination the family settled down again. By then they were all married. The two older daughters live in Eastern Oregon. Ora and Emil Miller, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in February, 1953, live on their farm on the flat near Elgin. Mae and Poy Knight live at Baker, Oregon. Elsa lives in San Francisco. Cecil, John and Walter are in the furniture business in Riverside, California. They and their families live there.

Joseph and Susanna Huffman returned to Oregon to spend the last years of their life. In 1935, they died within four months of each other. They are buried in the Elgin Cemetery.

FIFTH CHILD OF JOEL AND PHEBE

Caleb Larue Weaver and May Helen Waddell were married at the Waddell farm on Clarks Creek near Elgin, Oregon, December 26, 1887. Caleb was a farmer and they made their first home in a little log house while a new house was being built.

Caleb Larue and May Helen Weaver

The first four of the nine children were born on this farm. The second child, a boy, lived only six months.

A hard winter and heavy blizzards in 1893, caused Caleb to lose fifty head of cattle. This financial strain was so great that he gave up the farm and moved his family to Polk County, Dallas, near Salem, Oregon. There the fifth baby, a girl, was born. This was 1895, and the great depression of the nineties was on. The loss of one team of horses by lightning and another by theft caused Caleb to return to Elgin, where he went to work at his brother John's sawmill in Happy Hollow. Here, on August 14, 1897, a son was born.

On November 26, 1897, while working with the planer in the sawmill, Caleb's right hand was caught and completely dismembered at the wrist. There followed this accident the ten-mile ride by the nephew Arthur, who was only a boy, the drive by carriage and teams by the two Doctors, Brownell and McNaughton, the lack of sterilization of instruments, the shock and the grief.

Then came the re-habilitation period that took nearly two years. Caleb began as soon as he could sit up in bed to learn to write with his left hand. The family moved to Elgin, and Caleb engaged in various kinds of work to supplement the efforts of his wife who not only kept the home and cared for her family, but took in boarders as well as washing and ironing. It was during this period that Caleb was town marshal for Elgin.

Later, Caleb bought a small farm in Wallowa County, near Flora, Oregon, and moved his family there where his wife, May, became U. S. Postmistress and kept a small grocery store that served the community.

Caleb did his own freighting by team from Wallowa and Elgin eighty miles away. Those were happy childhood days for the four little girls and one boy. May and Cale, as they were known, were well loved in the two districts. The post office and store, however, were too much to manage with the family and other home responsibilities, so they sold out and returned to Union County and to the mill and timber.

Early in 1906, after an interim of railroad contracting and constructing, the Northern Pacific and the S. P. and S. (Spokane, Portland and Seattle), Caleb moved his family, including two more boys by that time, to Walla Walla, Washington, where the children were reared and another boy born in 1909. Later the family moved from a farm near Bickleton, Washington, to the Yakima Valley. There the younger boys went to school and high school.

Caleb's health failed in 1921, and he died after a major operation at the Hot Lake Sanitarium, Hot Lake, Oregon. He is buried in the cemetery at Prescott, Washington, near his father's first home when that family came to Washington Territory.

May went with her three younger boys to Pullman, Washington, where they finished high school and attended Washington State College. Clark graduated in 1929. From 1929 to 1931 he did graduate work at the University of Wisconsin where he met Inez Koegel and they were married. At the present time Clark is a professor at the University of Florida, Gainesville.

May Helen Waddell Weaver died after a short illness at the home of her daughter Nellie Gould in Vancouver, Washington, April 30, 1936.

Three of the daughters have died. The one remaining daughter, Nellie and her husband Fred Gould, live in San Jose, California. The four sons of Caleb Larue and May Helen Weaver are: Madison who married Mae McDougall and now farms near Walla Walla; Clark, who is in Florida; Earl, who is in the home furnishing business at Eureka, California; Curtis and his wife Wanita who have their home in Rosalia, Washington.

SEVENTH CHILD OF JOEL AND PHEBE

Jemia Jane Weaver, the seventh child of eleven, was born August 6, 1863, in Missouri. She crossed the plains with her parents Joel and Phebe Weaver in 1864. When Jemima was seventeen years old, 1880, she met and married Woodson Cummins.

They lived near the old home place until 1882, when they moved to a ranch near Touchet, Washington. Meanwhile, their first child, a girl, whom they named Hettie Jane, was born on a snowy night, December 28, 1881. Frank Cummins, Woodson's youngest brother, tells how Woodson called him in the night to go get Dr. Sherwood and Grandma Jane Weaver, and how he rode his horse Medock, through drifts of snow to get help.

The first house at the ranch near Touchet, Washington, was only a three room structure. Clarence Edward was born here as was Walter Robert, Lela May and Elmer Joe. The children attended the Touchet schools. Hettie attended high school. Clarence and Walter took a course at Business College in Walla Walla. Lela went to Normal School and became a teacher. Elmer went to Portland, Oregon, and took an auto mechanics course. He has followed that work ever since.

Meanwhile, in 1902, Woodson's sister Mary died and left three children. Woodson and Jemima (Mima as she was known) adopted the baby Eva Pearl, then two years old, so the Cummins family was increased to eight.

Hettie, the first to leave home, married William Eugene Burnap in 1904. Lela left home next to marry Krader Winfred Parsons. Krader was killed in an auto accident in 1928. Lela continued to teach school and reared her three girls. In 1951 she was married to Warham H. Cox of Los Angeles. Clarence married Bessie Adams and they had three children. Clarence served as County Commissioner for Walla Walla County two terms and held the office of Probation Officer at the time of his death.

Walter married Verna Renick and they had one son. Elmer married Lois Baker and they also had one son. Pearl married Audley Hanson and they had three children.

Jemima and Woodson rented the ranch and moved into Touchet in 1908. Jemima died July 30, 1935, and Woodson September 9, 1941. Both are buried in the Mountain View Cemetery in Walla Walla, Washington.

Isaac Franklin and Mary Weaver

In 1864, Isaac and Mary Weaver, his brother Joel, and their father Joshua with their families joined an emigrant train and made the trip to Washington Territory by ox team. After a short stay near the present town of Prescott, Washington, they moved to and settled in Indian Valley, Union County, near Elgin, Oregon. Later Isaac and Mary moved their family to Walla Walla County, Washington, near Dayton, where more of their children were born. Still later, Isaac and Mary returned to Indian Valley. Here their children grew up, married and reared families of their own. Both Isaac and Mary are buried at Cove, Oregon.

Isaac Weaver was a Home Missionary Baptist Preacher. His ninth, and only living son, James Edward Weaver, Medford, Oregan, gave the following account of Isaac and Mary, his father and mother, on March 1, 1956.

"My parents were just like other mothers and fathers living in this part of the country, or any part of the country being first settled. They were the first generation. I'm the second, and my children are the third. I was proud of my father and mother. My mother was a woman of fine principles. She was a big woman with unusual stamina. She weighed 200 pounds and sometimes a little more.

"There were fifteen of us children. Some of the neices and nephews remember the stories she used to tell them. Her favorites were about why the Indian carved his gun, what happned to the man's right arm left in the road, who had the greatest number of pieces of jewelry in the wagon train, why she had no favorites in all her big family, why she served herself last at meals. Her yarns had merit, her tales had principles.

"Pa was a Home Missionary Baptist Preacher. He stood up in the community as a leader. He was tall and had a fine figure. He wore whiskers from the chin down. In those days that meant the upper part of his face was shaven, he had no mustache, but his whiskers on his chin were allowed to grow all across his face. He kept his whiskers trimmed and his face was neat and tidy. Everybody respected him and his word. He played the violin, mostly for hymns, and was a powerful preacher.

"He had five places to serve in the territory. He had a horse and he went from one place to the other to conduct his meetings. He worked for no wages. If a man attending the congregation wanted to give him five dollars or a nickel, he held the money in his hand when he shook hands with Pa. Pa was supposed to continue the handshake and then put the money into his pocket, never looking at it, never knowing how much it was.

"The church gave Pa a suit of clothes in season and a dress to Ma. Once in a while Ma and I had to use our heads to get along. I remember once we had five pigs given us. I said to her, 'Ma, don't you think it would be all right for us to raise four pigs instead of five?'

"She thought a little and said, 'I could hold him, if you could hit him on the head!'

"She held the hog and I hit him on the head. Then she turned away and said, 'James, did you ever stick a hog?'

"I thought of all the things that I had seen done to get a pig butchered and said, 'Not 'till I get this one stuck.'

"Pa died from a carbuncle, May 23, 1896. Today a carbuncle would be very easy to control, but in those days they were very serious."

SECOND CHILD OF ISAAC AND MARY WEAVER

John William Weaver and Rosa Isabelle Campbell were married November 25, 1879. Their five children included one son and four daughters. During the first year or so of their marriage they and Mary Parks and her husband lived in a "dugout" house on the banks of the Snake River while the men were working on the canyon road. These were real pioneer days for them. Afterwards they lived north of Waitsburg and cleared a small farm.

In 1889 the family moved to a wheat farm near Spangle, Washington. On the way there they ferried across the Snake River. The children remember how their dog failed to get on the boat and was left behind.

The family left this farm in 1894, and moved to Plaza where John rented another farm. While the family lived here the oldest son, Henry, enlisted in the Spanish-American War.

In 1897 they moved to Stevens County near Daisy, Washington, where John worked in the mines. Henry came home from the war just before his mother died in December, 1901. The two girls, Nellie (15) and Cora (17) kept house for their father for two years. Then they both married but continued to take care of the two younger sisters. Cora Belle Weaver married Charles S. Summers, a Rural Mail Carrier. They lived in Daisy, Washington, for 31 years where their children were all born. Nellie and her husband, who live in Burton, B. C., celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary August 22, 1953.

John William Weaver died in Renton, Washington, May 1935.

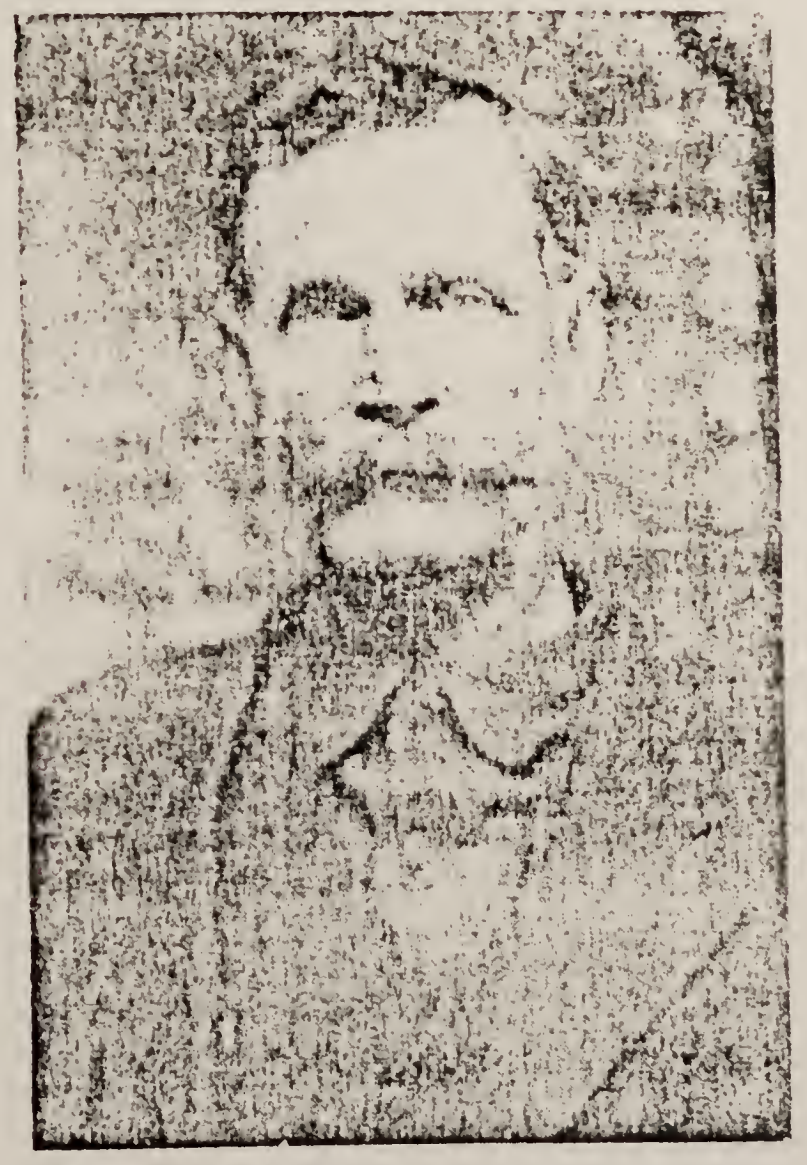
THIRD CHILD OF ISSAC AND MARY WEAVER

Joseph Joshua Weaver returned to Missouri and married Anna Bell Ward in 1888. While still living in Missouri, two sons, Henry and John I., were born. Joshua and



Joseph Joshua (Josh) Weaver

Ann returned to Oregon and settled in Indian Valley near Elgin, Oregon, where two daughters, Vina and Iva were born. The family then moved to a ranch near Imbler and another son, Clifford was born. In 1903, Joshua and Ann took their family to the Wallowa Valley near the little town of Joseph where Joshua farmed three years and another daughter, Beulah, was born. In 1913, the family moved to Clarkston for a year and Joshua worked in a livery stable. The automobile was fast replacing the horse so Joshua took his family back to Enterprise where they remained while the children finished their schooling, grew up, and all married.

Joshua and Ann reluctantly left Enterprise and the Wallowa Valley snuggling at the foot of the blue snowcapped Little Alps of America, and went to Union, Oregon, where they lived until Ann's death, November 27, 1919, at Hot Lake, Oregon. She is buried at Enterprise. Joshua died January 25, 1927, and is buried at Cove, Oregon.

Henry married and raised two daughters. He died August 27, 1920, and is buried at Enterprise. The daughter Iva was killed by a horse on the Snake River, April 27, 1912. Her six-month old son, Paul McNaulty, was adopted. He died in an auto accident when he was about 22 years old.

ELEVENTH CHILD OF ISAAC AND MARY WEAVER

Phoebe Catherine Weaver, eleventh child of Isaac and Mary Weaver, was married to Frank Milne of Montrose, Scotland, in 1892, at Elgin, Oregon. Their three children are: Agnes Mary, Ralph Franklin, and Elinore Frances.

The Milnes made their home on the old Weaver Ranch, lying between Clark's Creek and Indian Creek, which Frank bought from his father-in-law, Isaac Weaver. When Agnes was ten years old, Ralph eight, and Nellie (Elinore) was four, Frank Milne was found dead in the pasture. It was thought that he suffered a heart attack while going for the horses in preparation for the spring cattle round-up. Phoebe died about eighteen months later.

For about four years the children lived with a guardian, R. H. Lloyd and his wife.

Then they went to Scotland to live with Frank's relatives. Some time later, when Agnes was to go with her cousins to a school in England, the children had need of money and learned that their money in the United States had mysteriously disappeared. They convinced their uncles that they could regain this money, if the three youngsters returned to Elgin. Back in Elgin, Oregon, where they did not regain any money, the three grew up and completed their educations.

Agnes married Frank Shoemaker and became the mother of one child, Frances Jeanne, who is with the Department of Education in Los Angeles County, California.

Ralph became a dentist and married Lola Marian Greene. They have one daughter, Judith Carol.

Elinore married Harold A. Cowles and they have two children, Harold A. Cowles, Jr., a real estate dealer in Cincinati, Ohio, and Catherine May Cowles. Elinore is now Mrs. John Morey and lives in Seattle.
